

Your Birth Time is an important piece of information in calculating your Birth Chart.

If you are unsure of the exact time but know a birth time span such as “I was born in the early hours of the morning” or “I was born late in the evening close to midnight,” then this certainly helps in terms of accuracy.

If you do not know your exact birth time, you can try to obtain your birth certificate from the hospital where you were born, the Hall of Records or the County Clerk or Registrar. If this is not possible then I highly recommend that you have your birth time rectified. Rectifications of Birth Time (or Birth Date) vary in price depending on the level of difficulty, and the guesstimated birth time span involved. Even without an accurate birth time, I am still able to address your questions and concerns in more general terms. If you have any further questions regarding this, please send me an email. I look forward to helping you. Thank you.
